A-LEVEL SUCCESS

RDUTC has been named as one of the best schools in the country for the progress made by A-level students.

New league tables released by the Department for Education show we are ranked 15th of all schools and colleges in England, including fee-paying independent schools, for the progress made by our students who took their A-levels last summer.

Excluding independent schools, RDUTC is ranked as the 6th best for student progress, with a progress score of 0.72, which is officially rated as “well above average”.

RDUTC is also the No. 1 ranked school or college in Hull and the East Riding of Yorkshire.

Principal Sarah Pashley said: “We’re absolutely thrilled with the results delivered by our brilliant students and particularly by the progress they made in just two years since joining our school.

“To be ranked as the 15th best school or college for value added progress at A-levels is phenomenal and a great tribute to the students and also all our fantastic staff who have helped them to fulfil their potential.

“The achievement is even better when independent schools are removed and we are ranked among just a handful of schools and colleges across the country for maximising the progress of A-level students.

“I must also pay tribute to our employer partners and the University of Hull whose contribution is such a vital part of the school’s success.

Our students and their parents really buy into our unique employer-led model of learning, which is based on a proactive partnership between education and business professionals. The progress score is the latest evidence of the outstanding results this model delivers.”
